Care of Others

At times helping happens simply in the way of things. It is not something we really think about, merely the instinctive response of an open heart. Caring is a reflex—someone slips, your arm goes out. A car is in a ditch, you join the others and push. It all seems natural and appropriate. This is because an instinctive generosity of spirit is working in us. Not always, of course but when it is there and we respond to it, we feel great. Wouldn't it be wonderful to have a society where the care of others did not have to be obligatory, but would occur naturally, where service wasn't a duty but a way of living. (Sr. S. Kennedy in Gardening the Soul)

Heal the Sick

Lord, comfort all who are ill in body, soul or mind. Heal them as you will. Bless the work of doctors, and nurses, and all those who support them. May they join caring to curing in the service of those who are weak and suffering. May they never tire of being compassionate but persevere in their efforts to relieve the pain of humanity. We ask this in Jesus' name. Amen
